- (U) VA spreads their hateful propaganda via the internet and by distributing fliers, posters, and stickers.
- (U) VA is particularly focused on recruiting young men and has engaged in unprecedented outreach efforts to attract students on American college campuses.
- (U) VA has participated in white supremacist rallies and protests around the country.
- (U) VA members have targeted Jewish institutions with hateful propaganda.

(U) Vanguard America (VA) is a white supremacist group that opposes multiculturalism and believes that America is an exclusively white nation. Using a right-wing nationalist slogan, Blood and Soil, VA romanticizes the notion that people with "white blood" have a special bond with "American soil." This philosophy first originated in Germany (as Blut und Boden) and was later popularized by Hitler's regime. In the same vein, VA uses "For Race and Nation" as a variant slogan. Following this theme, VA maintains that America "is to be a nation exclusively for the White American peoples who out of the barren hills, empty plains, and vast mountains forged the most powerful nation to ever have existed."

(U) Originally VA was firmly in the alt-right hemisphere with focus on white identity. At that time the group was called American Vanguard. However, the VA has increasingly demonstrated a neo-Nazi ideology. In one iteration of their manifesto, posted in February 2017, the VA explained that America was built on the foundation of White Europeans, and that the glory of the Aryan nation must be recaptured. VA has also stressed the need for the nation to be free of the influence of the international Jews. In July 2017, VA tweeted, "Those behind the subversive elements eroding our culture often have something in common. Jewish influence is prevalent, invasive, dangerous."

(U) In April 2017, VA broadened their ties to the neo-Nazi movement by participating in a white supremacist rally in Pikeville, Kentucky. The event was organized by the Nationalist Front (NF), an umbrella group co-led by Jeff Schoep, the leader of the neo-Nazi Nationalist Socialist Movement, and Matthew Heimbach, the leader of the Traditionalist Workers Party. A short time after the rally, VA became a member of the NF.

(U) Organizational structure

(U) Dillon Irizarry (aka Dillon Ulysses Hopper), a Marine Corps veteran from New Mexico, has been leading the group since early 2016. During a speech at the previously mentioned neo-Nazi gathering in Kentucky, Irizarry said that VA started in California two years ago and that he took over leadership about a year ago. Irizarry also said that the "future is about the youth" and (for that reason) his group base is 18 to 24 years old. At the time, he also claimed approximately 200 members, in 20 different states.

(U) There are small, active VA chapters in Arizona, California, Florida, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, and Washington.

(U) VA has some paramilitary characteristics. In states with open carry laws, Irizarry, who uses the title Commander, and several other members have openly carried firearms during rallies and protests. The

Those flyers were attributed to American Vanguard. According to the Southern Poverty Law Center, Vanguard America splintered off from American Vanguard in a split among its membership.

The school said that following its standard protocol, university police removed the flyers and referred the matter to the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office for review.

The flyers called for a "Muslim-free America," according to a report by NJ.com. Similar flyers were also distributed at several other colleges, according to multiple reports.

The flyer "violate the values and ideals for which Rutgers stands," the university told its community. "We strongly condemn this kind of speech and are appalled that our Muslim community was targeted in this way."

Asbury Park: Just last month, police were reportedly looking for information on Vanguard America flyers that had appeared in Asbury Park. One was headlined "Hate Facts with Hitler, brought to you by Vanguard America," and included several points meant to be derogatory to Jews and Muslims. NBC New York reported.

Why central New Jersey?

Hopper said some of his group's activities are coordinated at the national level, some at the state level, and some within smaller districts.

But he said for the most part, his organization's individual groups operate "autonomously upon their own free will and accord."

"All the feedback that we get, our members interpret as positive," he said. "We get applications. We can see spikes every time we go and poster a school, every time we get those posters on the evening news, even locally."

Potter said the group sees attention — even hostile attention and condemnations — as a chance to raise its profile.

"The way we interpret it, is the more they attack us, the more they give us publicity," he said. "And the more they push our image out there and say that we are so evil and wicked and they're trying to demonize us, that's just going to help us because it's going to push more people to our ideal."

He claimed that's "because (critics are) showing their true colors of how it's not even about hating fascists or hating nationalist socialists or any of those political labels," but rather, about hating white people.

It is illegal?

In its description "The Face of White Supremacy in 2017," the New Jersey Office of Homeland Security listed Vanguard America among the groups that have grown out of Internet message boards and expanded their activities "to include distributing recruitment posters on campuses and inciting violence at protests and rallies across the United States."

It noted the confrontational, racially charged language used by the group on its website: "Our religion, our traditions and our identity are dragged through the mud by the globalist establishment, while millions of nonwhites flood our nation every year. ... It's time to take a stand."

Hopper said whenever possible, he encourages his members to abide by the law.

"I don't want any of my members doing anything unlawful or illegal. If they do or are caught they are instantly booted from a group," he said.

He said he didn't remember the specifics of the incident, but said one member voluntarily left the group before vandalizing a "Jewish religious center."

Why a racist, anti-Semitic hate group keeps targeting central NJ

By Adam Hochron September 5, 2017 5:01 AM

ADL New Jersey via Twitter

The leader of a white supremacist group that has spread racist and anti-Semitic flyers throughout central New Jersey claims his Garden State chapter is among his largest and most active.

In and around New Jersey, that amounts to a few dozen members, said Dylan Hopper, who described himself as president and chief executive officer of the hate group known as Vanguard America.

Those members have made their presence known over and over again in New Jersey, catching the attention not only of upset community members, but local authorities.

Vanguard America is described as a hate-driven white supremacist group by the Anti-Defamation League. The New Jersey Office of Homeland Security says it's tried to "rebrand" since 2016 in hopes of luring in more recruits who can help in its efforts to intimidate minority populations. That has included distributing materials on New Jersey college campuses.

The Homeland Security office notes its fundamentally bigoted credo — and its focus on "blood and soil," a favorite slogan of the Nazi party.

Hopper described his group to New Jersey 101.5 as one of "national socialists" — the political doctrine of the Nazis — and fascists. He said his group is allied with, though not directly partnered with, the KKK — and lamented that the association brings up negative imagery ("Their image has been demonized so much in the media for the last 100 years that it's not quite beneficial to work alongside them," he said).

The New York Times and others reported last month James Alex Fields Jr. — the white supremacist accused of running down Heather Heyer during protests in Charlottesville, Virginia — was marching along with Vanguard America members. But the group also denied Fields was a member on its now-suspended Twitter account.

The group in its manifesto says "a government based in the natural law must not cater to the false notion of equality."

Hopper claimed his group has about 200 members nationwide. And he claimed that each time its members take on activities like spreading anti-Jewish, anti-Muslim flyers like those seen central New Jersey, those numbers group.

"Our numbers have just exploded due to this Charlottesville incident," he said. "We're getting dozens and dozens of applications for our group everyday."

New Jersey incidents

The group's name is cited on materials spread around several central New Jersey towns including Lakewood, Princeton and most recently Asbury Park.

Lakewood: In July, photos posted online by the state chapter of the Anti-Defamation League showed the banner covering a Holocaust memorial in Lakewood, less than a week after several residents of Lakewood's Orthodox Jewish community were charged with welfare fraud.

A message on the covering included an ethnic slur for Jewish people and they "will not divide us." Underneath that was bloodandsoil.org, Vanguard America's website. The site no longer appears accessible; many white supremacist groups's sites have been taken offline by web hosting companies in recent weeks.

The same week, flyers were passed around town complaining of "thieving Jews" — an apparent reference to the welfare fraud arrests.

At the time, Attorney General Christopher Porrino retweeted an ADL post about the incidents, calling them "disgusting" and saying that a $10,000 reward was available for information that could lead to a conviction for bias crimes. Porrino did not elaborate on the possible charges those involved in this specific incident might face.

Princeton University: In April, anti-immigrant and anti-Semitic flyers were found on the doors of several buildings including the school's Center for Jewish Life. Officials removed the flyers, but hours later Vanguard America tweeted out an image of one singling out Princeton University's Jewish population, according to reports at the time.

It also targeted Arab people, bi-racial children and women, according to reports at the time.

Daniel Day, the assistant vice president for communications at the school, told New Jersey 101.5 Princeton reached out to its community with a statement condemning the flyers.

"We value mutual respect here and deplore messages of hatred," he said.

But he acknowledged it's difficult to prevent such incidents there.

"It's really difficult to bottle these up before they get to campus," he said. "Any incidence like this are reprehensible. We just hope we don't see any more of it."

Rutgers University: In February, the University sent out an alert to students, saying several members of the school community had reported "that they were offended and threatened" by flyers posted at the Paul Robeson Cultural Center, which also serves as a prayer space on campus.

standard uniform for members consists of khaki pants and a white polo. At several venues, members have stood and marched in military-styled formations, and utilized military facing movements and rest positions.

(U) Membership is typically male. However, VA recently formed a women's division. In June 2017, VA tweeted, "The woman has her own battlefield. With every child that she brings into the world, she fights her battle for the nation. Strong nations grow from strong families. Vanguard America Women's Division."

(U) Activity

(U) Vanguard America is active online, particularly on Twitter, but is best known for posting white supremacist fliers at universities across the country throughout the 2016-17 school year. During the year, the ADL counted at least 32 incidents where VA fliers were posted on campus in Arkansas, California, Florida, Indiana, Maryland, New Jersey, Oregon, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

(U) In addition to distributing racist and anti-Semitic flyers, Vanguard America has directly targeted Jewish institutions with hateful propaganda. Recent incidents include:

- (U) Shreveport, Louisiana, March 11, 2017: VA stickers were left at two synagogues.
- (U) Lakewood, New Jersey, July 2, 2017: an anti-Semitic VA banner was hung at the Holocaust memorial.

(U//~~FOUO~~) On 04/03/2018, FBI LS received information that Patriot Front flyers had been posted on the front doors of Kentucky Refugee Ministries (KRM), a refugee resettlement agency located at 969-B Cherokee Rd., Louisville, KY. A photo of these flyers has been attached to this EC as a 1A Package. The Executive Director of KRM noted that as of 04/03/2018, "[t]here were no other signs of vandalism /defacement to our building or related incidents."

(U) According to the Anti-Defamation League (ADL), Patriot Front is active online and on social media, and their "most frequent form of activism" has been distribution of "racist and anti-Semitic propaganda on college campuses and in various communities." Based on open source information, such "propaganda" appears to include flyers and larger banners. ADL indicates that Patriot Front members have also participated in "localized flash mob demonstrations" in Texas, and hold "private meet-ups, which routinely involve a physical fitness element like sparring or hiking."

Synopsis: (U) To document information regarding Patriot Front flyers found at Kentucky Refugee Ministries

Administrative Notes: (U//~~FOUO~~) The group named in this document has been identified as participating in activities that are protected by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Their inclusion here is not intended to associate the protected activity with criminality or a threat to national security, or to infer that such protected activity itself violates federal law. However, based on known intelligence and/or specific, historical observations, it is possible the protected activity could invite a violent reaction towards the group, or the activity could be used as a means to target law enforcement. In the event no violent reaction occurs, FBI policy and federal law dictates that no further record be made of the protected activity.

(U//~~FOUO~~) Potential criminality exhibited by certain members of a group (s) referenced herein does not negate nor is it a comment on the constitutional rights of the group itself or its members to exercise their rights under the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The FBI does not investigate, collect, or maintain information on U.S. persons solely for the purpose of monitoring activities protected by the First Amendment.

There is a small UpStart team working on this issue. We are in conversation with the Anti-Defamation League and we are looking into best practices to ensure digital safety moving forward. We are not sharing the list of network names with the majority of our staff in order to maintain your privacy.

If you desire to take action, I recommend submitting a tip to the FBI and reporting the incident to the ADL. We have taken such steps. If we learn more about how to take further action, we will be happy to share with you. And, if you learn of other actions to take, please let us know.

These are unsettling times and I am horrified that these are the challenges facing our community. If UpStart or I can be supportive moving forward, please don't hesitate to reach out to us.

How is Contact Known: We don't know the person. We are a Jewish educational organization. We learned we are listed on Vanguard America, a white supremacist website. It was recommended that we contact the FBI, so that's what I'm doing.
